Bob,

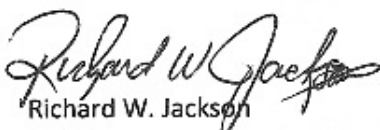

I was invited to a TMP briefing three years ago through my Christian friend, Connie Salios. After listening to you inform and inspire those in attendance, for the next several days I found myself wondering; can I commit myself to the quarterly meetings and personal time to embrace your teachings? Is this the right platform for me to grow in my faith? Am I ready for this transformation? While I had some reservations, in my heart I believed it was not by chance that I was invited, and I needed to follow God's direction. He has always been there for me to help me meet life's challenges, and now he has brought me here at this particular time in my life to grow in my walk with Him.

During our three year program, I have found the course informative, thought-provoking, disturbing, inspirational, and most importantly transformational. I say "disturbing" in the sense that it has helped me look at myself and recognize that God has blessed me with gifts (talents and treasures) that are to be used and shared. I, like most Christians, have been reasonably content living under the misconception that by studying The Bible, attending church, participating in occasional faith based services, and trying to live with Christian values was enough to honor God. TMP's thorough and passionate guidance has made it crystal clear that God has equipped us with much more. You have taught us how to identify our God given talents, provided us with all the necessary tools and resources to identify and/or create opportunities within our Kingdom Calling, and challenged us to aggressively pursue it.

While I am still working my way through the wonderful library of books, The Blessing touched me deep inside. I (probably like most), never received the blessing from my father, and carry the difficult memory of his passing due to Cancer 1 day before my 18th birthday. With the intent of shielding me from his horrible suffering, I was encouraged to go about my life normally. With this direction, and my denial of his terminal illness, there was not much quality time together, and it haunted me for years. While it was a very difficult and dark time of my life, and even though I was not an engaged Christian, I did believe in my heart that God had a plan for my life. The Blessing has taught me how essential it is to share the blessing with your children. I am inspired to prepare and present my blessing to my 18 year old son this summer, and to his 2 siblings over the next twelve months.

I am eternally grateful for your articulate and unwavering Kingdom work that has transformed my spiritual foundation. As I mentioned earlier, God lead me here to grow in my walk with Him, and through you-TMP he has (as always) kept his promise. Through TMP, I have the proper foundation and tools to understand and implement my Kingdom Calling.

Sincerely

Richard W. Jackson
